

Teaching Workforce Readiness Skills for Success in a Global Economy

Nov. 28, 8 a.m. -Noon

Cost: $150

It is crucial that we ensure all students have the “soft skills” or 21st century skills necessary to work in today’s interconnected economy. You will leave this session with an understanding of which workforce readiness skills are important for success and how to begin to integrate them into what you are already teaching. Together, we will examine project ideas and begin work on a global project you can use in your classroom. Please come with one curriculum project or lesson that you are already planning to teach and would like to add a global dimension to. Bring your laptop or tablet. Free resources and professional development materials will be shared.
